

“What About Our Boys and Men? Understanding the Challenges Facing Males Who Have Been Sexually Victimized”

Julie Brand, M.S. , CAPER Consulting: Child Abuse Prevention, Education and Recovery
Web site: <http://www.caperconsulting.com> E-Mail: julie_brand@caperconsulting.com

Myth # 1 Boys and men can't be victims of sexual abuse.

The ACE study confirms that 16% of males and 25% of females (1 in 6 males; 1 in 4 females) report “contact childhood sexual abuse” before the age of 18. Men report female perpetrators nearly 40% of the time.

Boys and men can be the victims of sexual abuse and assault.

Myth # 2 Sexual abuse is less harmful and less traumatic for boys than for girls.

The long-term consequences of childhood sexual abuse are similar for both male and female victims. The trauma is intensified when victims do not disclose or are not believed and supported.

Myth # 3 Most of the men who sexually abuse boys are homosexuals.

No, they are pedophiles. Most are heterosexual; many are married with children.

Myth # 4 Boys abused by males are, or will become, homosexual.

Sexual abuse has nothing to do with a boy's innate sexual orientation.

Myth # 5 If a boy experiences sexual arousal or orgasm during the abuse, it means he wanted it.

No. His body is just responding naturally physiologically.

Myth # 6 If the perpetrator is a woman, the boy should just feel “lucky.”

Whether the perpetrator is male or female, an underage child is too young to legally consent. It is child sexual abuse. It is rape. It is a crime.

Myth # 7 Boys who are sexually abused in childhood will go on to abuse others.

Male victims fear that if people find out they were abused, they will look at them as future child molesters. The vast majority of victims never abuse others.

They may even fear that they are somehow destined to become perpetrators.

-- <https://1in6.org/get-information/myths/>

Why don't boys tell right away? When the perpetrator is a stranger brandishing a weapon, victims are more likely to tell right away. But most often the perpetrator is someone the child knows—a coach or teacher or older family friend or relative—someone who the victim trusts. Perpetrators gradually and methodically groom their victims over time. They often have a highly developed plan to secure the trust of the victim, the victim's family and his community so that they can gain on-going easy, unquestioned access to the child. (Jerry Sandusky a “pillar of the community”)

Delayed reporting and initial denial of the abuse are common responses to the trauma. The boy may be showered with attention, affection and gifts. The perpetrator coerces his victim into the unwanted sexual experiences by telling him that he loves him and the sex acts are just “natural expressions of our affection.” The abusive acts escalate slowly and may be pleasurable. The behaviors may gradually progress from seemingly innocent touching and tickling games to “accidentally” touching the boy’s genitals, to masturbation, oral sex and sodomy. Victims are often confused and embarrassed while it is going on but do not know to label it as “abuse.”

Victims don’t know what to do. They want the abuse to stop but are afraid of what will happen if they tell. They are trapped. The perpetrator may tell them that no one will believe them or that it’s their fault—that they went along with it so they will be punished. The offender may threaten suicide. Fear can keep victims mute while the abuse is going on. Because of the myths about male victims, fear and shame can also keep them silent for years, long after the abuse has long stopped.

Victims may continue to associate with their abusers. The perpetrator may be the only person in the child’s or teen’s world who seems to really care about him. Manipulated over time, the victim is often deeply entrenched in a “relationship” with their perpetrator. Or the child victim may actually live in the same household as their offender. How can he tell on the person who feeds and clothes him? What would happen if he told? The offender would go to prison and the victim would be homeless?

The overwhelming majority of sexual abuse is perpetrated by someone the child, pre-teen, or teenager knows and feels that he can trust. They have an emotional bond, of varying degrees, with that perpetrator. Therefore, it is not just the sexual acts—which may range from non-violent and even pleasurable to brutal and physically damaging—but the emotional betrayal that is so overwhelmingly confusing and hurtful to the victim. This is especially true when the offender is a close relative—a father, mother, aunt, uncle, grandparent, older sibling, cousin. Victims of female perpetrators—either familial or non-familial—face additional obstacles and challenges based solely on gender.

We must begin by acknowledging the sexual abuse of males and then seeking to fully understand their victimization in order to offer them meaningful, effective intervention, support and therapy services. They, too, deserve to heal and to live healthy, happy and fulfilling lives.

Sometimes it can be difficult for adult men who have never experienced any form of sexual abuse to believe that this happened to so many others. They may say, “Well, nothing ever happened to me or to the men in my family . . . or to any guys I’ve ever known.” Gently I respond: “They just haven’t felt safe enough to tell you yet.”

References and resources:

ACE: The Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) Study.

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/15894146>

<https://www.cdc.gov/violenceprevention/cestudy/index.html>

Anderson, Christopher. "Trauma & PTSD in Male Survivors of Sexual Abuse"

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jbYPPxBqOYY> APA Division 56 - Trauma Psychology Mar 29, 2017 <https://www.christophermanderson.com/>

Andersen, Torbjorn Herlof. "Against the wind: male victimization and the ideal of manliness," Journal of Social Work, May 2013, Vol. 13, No. 3, pp 231-247 (Norway)

 Fradkin, Howard, Ph.D., LICDC. Joining Forces: Empowering Male Survivors to Thrive. Hay House, Inc., (2012).

 Gartner, Richard B. Beyond Betrayal: Taking Charge of Your Life after Boyhood Sexual Abuse. Canada: John Wiley & Sons, Ltd. (2005).

Getz, Lindsay. "Male Survivors of Childhood Sexual Abuse — Looking Through a Gendered Lens." Social Work Today, Vol. 11 No. 2 March/April 2011 Issue, <http://www.socialworktoday.com/archive/032311p20.shtml>

Hopper, Jim, Ph.D., Teaching Associate in Psychology in the Department of Psychiatry of Harvard Medical School. "Sexual Abuse of Boys." <https://www.jimhopper.com/child-abuse/sexual-abuse-of-boys/>

Hopper, Jim, Ph.D., Dept. of Psychiatry, Massachusetts General Hospital & Harvard Medical School (revised 2012). "Sexual Abuse of Males: Prevalence, Possible Lasting Effects and Resources." <http://www.jimhopper.com/male-ab/> <http://www.jimhopper.com>

Lew, Mike. Victims No Longer: The Classic Guide for Men Recovering from Sexual Child Abuse. Small Wonder Books; 2nd edition (2014)

"Long-term consequences of childhood sexual abuse by gender of victim." Am J Prev Med. 2005 June 28(5):430-8. Dube SR¹, Anda RF, Whitfield CL, Brown DW, Felitti VJ, Dong M, Giles WH. National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Atlanta, Georgia 30341-3724, USA. <http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/15894146>

"Male Survivors of Sexual Abuse and Assault: Their Experiences." McDonald, Susan and Tijerino, Adamira, Research and Statistics Division Department of Justice Canada 2013 www.justice.gc.ca/eng/rp-pr/cj-jp/victim/rr13_8/rr13_8.pdf

Osborne, Tegan. "New research shedding light on sex abuse committed by mothers against their sons," August 2015. <http://www.abc.net.au/news/2015-08-08/new-research-mothers-who-sexually-abuse-their-sons/6679102>

Sandusky, Matthew. Undaunted: Breaking My Silence to Overcome the Trauma of Child Sexual Abuse. Rothco Press (2015)

“Sexuality of Offenders,” Jacob Wetterling Resource Center
<http://www.gundersenhealth.org/ncptc/jacob-wetterling-resource-center/keep-kids-safe/sexual-offenders-101/sexuality-of-offenders/>

U.S. Dept. of Justice, Friday, January 6, 2012 “Attorney General Eric Holder Announces Revisions to the Uniform Crime Report’s Definition of Rape.”
<https://www.justice.gov/opa/pr/attorney-general-eric-holder-announces-revisions-uniform-crime-report-s-definition-rape>

U. S. Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Criminal Justice Information Services: Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) Division Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program “Reporting Rape in 2013 Summary Reporting System (SRS) User Manual and Technical Specification.”
<https://ucr.fbi.gov/recent-program-updates/reporting-rape-in-2013-revised>

Male Survivor

4768 Broadway #527

New York, NY 10034

<http://www.malesurvivor.org/>

<http://www.malesurvivor.org/index.php>

One in Six

<https://1in6.org/> <https://bristleconeproject.org/>

“Haunting Video Shows Sexual Abuse Trauma Isn’t Limited By Gender”

<https://1in6.org/> Huffington Post by Curtis M. Wong

https://www.huffingtonpost.com/entry/male-sexual-abuse-advocacy-video_us_5accf9fbe4b0e37659b148fa

Peaceful Hearts Foundation (Matthew Sandusky)

<http://www.peacefulheartsfoundation.org>

RAINN (Rape, Abuse & Incest National Network), national anti-sexual violence organization

<https://www.rainn.org/about-rainn>.

<https://www.rainn.org/articles/sexual-assault-men-and-boys>

BC Society For Male Survivors Of Sexual Abuse

#202 - 1252 Burrard St. Vancouver, BC V6Z 1Z1 604-682-6482

<http://bc-malesurvivors.com>

The Canadian Centre for Male Survivors of Child Sexual Abuse

<http://www.cc4ms.ca/>